2 Against which restricted party lists should an EU-based company screen?

2.1 EU regulations against which to screen

Companies based in the EU generally need to consider only sanctions and restricted party lists arising from EU embargoes or the various bodies of national law. By listing persons, companies, and organizations, the EU sanction and embargo regulations pursue three different objectives:

- One area are the anti-terrorism regulations, which are not country-specific. The following regulations are included: Regulation (EU) 881/2002 against ISIL (Da'esh) and Al-Qaida, Regulation (EU) 2580/2001 against other suspected terrorists and Regulation (EU) 753/2011 in view of the situation in Afghanistan, including all amending regulations.
- In addition, the EU imposes financial sanctions against persons, companies, and organizations associated with the proliferation and use of chemical weapons, cyber attacks, or human rights violations.
- The largest number of financial sanctions in the EU can be found in the country-specific EU embargo regulations, such as those against Russia, Belarus, Iran, and North Korea.

The websites of the responsible national authorities include a current list of country-specific embargoes, which include name lists in their annexes. http://www.bafa.de/DE/Aussenwirtschaft/Ausfuhrkontrolle/Embargos/embargos_node.html

2.2 US restricted party lists against which to screen

The United States usually asserts worldwide authority for its export control laws. Companies with headquarters in the EU are recommended to also screen their business partners against US restricted party lists when they are concerned.

Companies that fall within the scope of the EAR or other globally applicable US laws must ensure that they comply with applicable US regulations. The US has a large number of restricted party lists with very different backgrounds and legal consequences. Not all of them have to be observed worldwide.

3 Which lists does AEB currently offer in the Compliance solution?

AEB offers you an automatic update service as an integral part of your AEB Compliance solution. This update is a fully automated background process without the need for any user interaction. AEB updates the current versions of the restricted party lists daily and maintain them for you on a central server in the AEB data center.

Currently, the extensive international list content is available to you as detailed in the following. This list content is extended continuously. Additionally, AEB is working with some partner companies that also provide lists for various countries.

Which lists your application checks depends on your license agreement. The scope of the update service is thus tailored to your company's individual needs.
